2008 ISPN Psychopharmacology Institute and Tenth Annual Conference

Introduction

Welcome to the 2008 Annual Education Conference sponsored by the International Society of Psychiatric-Mental Health Nurses! The content has been chosen with you in mind, and to highlight how many of you are making a difference through your work. This conference, entitled "Meeting the Challenge: Domestic and International Populations in Crisis" centers on the needs of clients across the lifespan, the delivery of therapy, psychopharmacology, consultation-liaison strategies, education in psychiatric-mental health nursing, research and multicultural issues from around the world. You'll have an opportunity to network with your colleagues, celebrate the best of advanced practice nursing, recognize colleagues for their outstanding work this past year, and hear more about the activities of the organization on your behalf.

ISPN is maintaining its focus on the following goals: to ensure the provision of safe, appropriate, quality care to individuals and families with mental health problems; to advocate for a legislative agenda that shapes health care policy favorably related to mental health issues; to foster and enhance research and scholarship in psychiatric-mental health nursing in order to grow the science and evidence base for our practice; to promote relevant educational preparation for the practice of psychiatric-mental health nursing; and to develop partnerships that strengthen the delivery of mental health care around the globe. When we meet these goals, with your help, we meet the mission of ISPN to unite and strengthen the voice and the presence of specialty advanced practice psychiatric-mental health nursing. There is no better way to meet these ambitious goals than to attend this conference and participate actively in all the opportunities available to you while you're here.

But ISPN conferences are also fun! We've planned an entertaining event on Thursday evening to benefit the research and scholarship fund of the ISPN Foundation. On Friday evening, you can explore on your own, enjoying all the city has to offer. Louisville is home to fabulous entertainment and attractions from the story of the Kentucky Bourbon Trail to the "secret recipe" that turned Colonel Harland Sanders into a global franchise. We know that you'll want to plan time for being together with your colleagues during your stay in Louisville!

Enjoy!!

2008 ISPN Psychopharmacology Institute and Tenth Annual Conference

First Annual ISPN Psychopharmacology Institute

Who Should Attend

- Advance practice nurses who prescribe psychopharmacologic agents in their clinical practice.
- Advance practice nurses who are educating nurses about psychopharmacology in their nursing programs.

Purpose

The first annual International Society of Psychiatric-Mental Health Nurses (ISPN) Psychopharmacology Institute (IPI) is being launched at the ISPN 10th Annual Conference due to the overwhelming feedback that we have received over the last few years from both members and Conference participants. The ISPN leadership has listened to what you want and need to enhance your knowledge and to make the learning opportunity easy to use. We have deliberately planned the IPI as part of the ISPN Annual Conference because we heard from members that taking off additional time to address learning needs for psychopharmacology practice was becoming a challenge both from a time utilization aspect and also a financial aspect.

We have designed a program that addresses practitioners that care for patients across the life span and also in various clinical practice settings. Therefore, there are breakout sessions that will be addressing prescribing issues related to children, adolescents, adults, and geriatric patients. Additionally, the sessions will address patients that are in acute care, emergency care, long term care, and in medical psychiatry and psychiatric consultation practices. This has been an incredible journey for the planning team and we hope that you, the consumer of ISPN education programs in the past and as ISPN members, know that we are listening and have heard you.

We are looking forward to your active participation in this program and have developed a "prescribing consultation forum" at the end of the IPI. Bring with you a particularly challenging clinical or case that you would like to discuss with our clinical experts on the panel. We will be exploring those particular cases and expect a robust audience participation.

We hope to see you at the First Annual ISPN Psychopharmacology Institute in Louisville, Kentucky on April 8-9, 2008!
