

Susan McCabe Lectureship
ISPN Psychopharmacology Institute

The Susan McCabe lectureship award is to honor the memory of our colleague Susan McCabe EdD, APRN, BC, who was taken from all us much too suddenly and prematurely. This lectureship is to celebrate her leadership and recognize her numerous contributions to psychiatric-mental health nursing. This award acknowledges psychiatric-mental health nurses whose career exemplify Dr. McCabe's unique values and principles that guided her life, as well as, her clinical and educational practices. These values include her tireless and focused commitment to improve care for the underserved, especially those in rural environments, who are typically stigmatized and/or disenfranchised. Additionally, demonstrated a constant dedication to educating and mentoring others, to become the "next generation of clinicians.

Dr. Susan McCabe demonstrated an outstanding knowledge of neurobiology of psychiatric-mental illness and psychopharmacology. She was responsible for a major push in the arena of educating advance practice nurses in the realm of prescribing and understanding the foundations of psychiatric-mental illnesses. Additionally, her willingness to share and disseminate her knowledge through educational, clinical and research activities has provided for a generation of advance practice nurses in psychiatric-mental health to continue her exceptional work. Susan was frequently asked to be the keynote at conferences focused on psychopharmacology and psychiatric nursing; therefore, we believe it is fitting to have this lectureship be the keynote at the ISPN Psychopharmacology Institute.

Please join us in honoring one of our true pioneers in the area of psychiatric-mental health nursing and psychopharmacology as we pay tribute to her many contributions.
